

THE MOST HOLY TRINITY 12th June 2022

Welcome to the community of the Catholic Parish of St John 23rd Glenwood-Stanhope Gardens where the love of Christ is shining in so many ways.

Translating is an art. The Scriptures are not simply literary relics of long ago but crucial components in a living dialogue, which makes translating them complicated. Reading the Scriptures has a vital role in private study and prayer, but the main conversation with them takes place in our liturgies. For this we do not simply pick up the Bible: the Lectionary is a liturgical book that assembles passages in particular combinations for these living encounters. With no biblical event to found the feast of the Holy Trinity and with no passage explicitly teaching trinitarian theology, no text automatically suggests itself for use on this theological feast. This year's second reading, Romans 5:1-5, does refer to Christ, and God (usually understood as the Father), and the Holy Spirit, but not in an explicitly trinitarian way as theology would later clarify it. So also the gospel, John 16:12-15, which more easily fits before rather than after Pentecost (and indeed is read every year on Wednesday in the Sixth Week of Easter, and forms the second part of the alternative reading for Pentecost Sunday in year B).

However, various passages do have traditional trinitarian, christological, or pneumatological interpretations and are chosen for the Lectionary accordingly. Problems then arise when the translation of the Bible used, for the Lectionary follows different translational principles, resulting in a nuance that may not fit with the reason for its selection. The Jerusalem Bible employed in our current Lectionary in Australia, and the NRSV too, presents such a problem in the first reading, Proverbs 8:22-31. The text personifies Wisdom, but Wisdom is not one of the named three persons in the triune Godhead, so does it refer to Christ, or the Spirit, or neither? One of the gifts of the Spirit is wisdom, which is not the same as Wisdom personified. With few exceptions, English does not employ grammatical gender, so when dealing with languages that do, native English speakers often confuse grammatical masculine and feminine with being sexually male or female; they trip on the fact that in both Hebrew and Greek (and Latin) the word for wisdom is feminine, and so they claim this Wisdom cannot be Christ and must be the Spirit which is feminine in Hebrew (but neuter in Greek, and masculine in Latin). This rationale is forgotten when calling Christ the Light, also feminine in Semitic languages and Latin, and neuter in Greek. Grammatical gender is of no avail. Both the Church's Eastern and Western wings have traditionally identified the Wisdom of Proverbs 8 with Christ, and the obvious textual relationships with the prologue of John's gospel reveal why.

The problem then manifests in our translation (and the NRSV) when it says "The Lord created me", which contradicts what we say of the Son, that he was "begotten, not made". The Hebrew verb has several nuances, create being among the lesser used. A more common nuance is possessed, as adopted in the Vulgate (possedit), giving a literal reading as "The Lord possessed me, the beginning of his way, before his works from of old". Its precise meaning being somewhat elusive, rendering it clearer results in varied translations. The Greek Septuagint, reflecting pre-Christian Jewish interpretation, reads "The Lord made me the beginning of his ways for his works", which does not cause the difficulty of the above-mentioned approaches. Both Greek and Latin versions of this line and what follows fit with John's prologue, which presents Christ as the world-shaping Word the Father speaks in the Bible's first account of creation. Both texts inform the traditional designs of icons of creation; the one measuring and shaping the cosmos is not a depiction of God the Father, whom no-one has seen, but is clearly clothed as Christ and bears his face, recognisable from other icons. However, Proverbs 8 also seems to speak of two being present, God working with Wisdom at his side. This can still be interpreted as God the Father directing and Wisdom fabricating, for Wisdom is also called "master craftsman" and is described as being at play both in God's presence and in the world. But it may also work with the image that envisages the Son and the Spirit as the "two hands" of God at work in the world.

Our Parish Mission

The parish of St John XXIII is a faith community with the Eucharist as its heart.
 Inspired by John XXIII's prophetic opening of the windows of the Church, we welcome the fresh air of the Holy Spirit, inviting every person to share in the responsibility of enriching the life and faith of our community by sharing their gifts and talents."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF COUNTRY

In the spirit of reconciliation, we acknowledge the traditional custodians of the lands in which the Catholic Parish of St John XXIII and the Diocese of Parramatta sits, the land of the Darug and Gundungurra people. We would like to pay our respects to the Aboriginal Elders past, present and future for they hold the traditions, memories and wisdom of Mother Earth on which we place our feet upon today.

Entrance Antiphon

Blest be God the Father, and the Only Begotten Son of God, and also the Holy Spirit, for he has shown us his merciful love.

First Reading

A reading from the book of Proverbs 8:22-31

Wisdom was born before the earth was made.

The Wisdom of God cries aloud:

The Lord created me when his purpose first unfolded, before the oldest of his works. From everlasting I was firmly set, from the beginning, before earth came into being. The deep was not, when I was born, there were no springs to gush with water. Before the mountains were settled, before the hills, I came to birth; before he made the earth, the countryside, or the first grains of the world's dust. When he fixed the heavens firm, I was there, when he drew a ring on the surface of the deep, when he thickened the clouds above, when he fixed fast the springs of the deep, when he assigned the sea its boundaries - and the waters will not invade the shore - when he laid down the foundations of the earth, I was by his side, a master craftsman, delighting him day after day, ever at play in his presence, at play everywhere in his world, delighting to be with the sons of men.

The word of the Lord.

Thanks be to God

Responsorial Psalm

Ps 8:4-9

R. O Lord, our God, how wonderful your name in all the earth!

When I see the heavens, the work of your hands, the moon and the stars which you arranged, what is man that you should keep him in mind, mortal man that you care for him? R.

Yet you have made him little less than a god; with glory and honour you crowned him, gave him power over the works of your hand, put all things under his feet. R.

All of them, sheep and cattle, yes, even the savage beasts, birds of the air, and fish that make their way through the waters. R.

Second Reading

A reading from the letter of St Paul to the Romans 5:1-5

To God through Christ in the love which is poured out through the Spirit.

Through our Lord Jesus Christ, by faith we are judged righteous and at peace with God, since it is by faith and through Jesus that we have entered this state of grace in which we can boast about looking forward to God's glory. But that is not all we can boast about; we can boast about our sufferings. These sufferings bring patience, as we know, and patience brings perseverance, and perseverance brings hope, and this hope is not deceptive, because the love of God has been poured into our hearts by the Holy Spirit which has been given us.

The word of the Lord.

Thanks be to God

Gospel Acclamation

cf Revelation 1:8

Alleluia, alleluia!

Glory to the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit: to God who is, who was, and who is to come. Alleluia!

Gospel

A reading from the holy Gospel according to John 16:12-15

Whatever the Father has is mine. The Spirit will receive what I give and tell you about it.

Jesus said to his disciples:

'I still have many things to say to you but they would be too much for you now. But when the Spirit of truth comes he will lead you to the complete truth, since he will not be speaking as from himself but will say only what he has learnt; and he will tell you of the things to come. He will glorify me since all he tells you will be taken from what is mine. Everything the Father has is mine; that is why I said: All he tells you will be taken from what is mine.'

The Gospel of the Lord. Praise to you, Lord Jesus Christ.

Communion Antiphon

Since you are children of God, God has sent into your hearts the Spirit of his Son, the Spirit who cries out: Abba, Father.

FAITH FORMATION

Our Lady of Perpetual Help

Oh Mother of Perpetual Help, grant that I may ever invoke your powerful name, the protection of the living and the salvation of the dying. Purest Mary, let your name henceforth be ever on my lips. Delay not, Blessed Lady, to rescue me whenever I call on you. In my temptations, in my needs, I will never cease to call on you, ever repeating your sacred name, Mary, Mary. What a consolation, what sweetness, what confidence fills my soul when I utter your sacred name or even only think of you! I thank the Lord for having given you so sweet, so powerful, so lovely a name. But I will not be content with merely uttering your name. Let my love for you prompt me ever to hail you Mother of Perpetual Help. Mother of Perpetual Help, pray for me and grant me the favour I confidently ask of you. (Then say three Hail Marys).
