The Lectionary omits all of Matthew 17 from the Sunday readings and so from we leap today to half-way through chapter 18, into the middle of what may be described as advice for living as Church. Navigating the conflicting ideas, expectations, hopes and values within any community takes some work, and the Church is not exempt from this messiness that is natural to all human communities. But how deep must the disagreement be before an “offender” is considered to have gone too far? How far off the path does one need to go in order to be deemed “wicked”? How much responsibility must we take for the wrongdoing of others, and how wrong do others have to be before we feel compelled to correct them? And who likes being corrected, or correcting? The advice in the first part might be considered as rules for responsible conflict resolution. There are four steps: speak with the offender in private (for humiliation, which creates resentment, must be avoided if rehabilitation is the aim); if matters are not resolved then involve a few others (for the evidence of others is needed—or may help break an impasse); if matters are still not resolved, involve the community in the hope that it will be listened to; and if matters are still not resolved, treat the offender as a pagan or tax collector. This last piece has been interpreted in some times and places as advice or a command for the community to shun and expel offenders. But did not Jesus keep company with tax collectors? Did not the apostolic Church reach out to pagan gentiles with the Good News? So, instead of being rejected, the offender is identified as one not yet converted, not truly incorporated into the Church and so outside community and communion, and therefore is one in need of conversion, for which engagement is required.

The next item, on binding and loosing, takes us back to the gospel reading two Sundays ago (Matt 16:19), but the authority to bind and loose is here directed not to Peter, but to the community of disciples, that is, the Church. These sayings in different nuances (the first is in the singular, the second in the plural) are found only in Matthew, and their nearest equivalent is John 20:23, but the same terminology and similar expressions are found in other ancient and rabbinic sources. It is a Jewish expression concerning legal decisions that impose or lift sanctions. This language arises also in Matthew 23:4 (to be read on the 31st Sunday in Ordinary Time this year) when Jesus accuses the scribes and Pharisees of binding heavy burdens on others and being unwilling to remove them. Christ’s mission, and therefore his Church’s, is to set free, to remit debt, to forgive sin – to lift the burden from those who are bound.

On turning to the second reading, a correction would not go astray. Sometimes translators have to balance competing interests of a direct translation versus a smoother one. Two paraphrases in today’s second reading have lost something. The first, “If you love your fellow men you have carried out your obligations”, with its needlessly gendered language, seems concerned merely with what satisfies an obligation. Instead, the Greek has “For the one loving the other fulfils the law.” Various verbs synonymously meaning fulfil, complete, and perfect are found in the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures. In this case, Paul indicates the deficient nature of law, since its precepts are reductions that when cast in the positive provide examples of right acting, and cast in the negative are examples of contraventions of right acting. Loving the other guides one away from willingly wronging the other, and it guides the way of doing right so that the right thing that is done may be done with good grace. The second quibble over translation is in the last line, “Love is the one thing that cannot hurt your neighbour; that is why it is the answer to every one of the commandments”, which in Greek more directly reads, “Goodwill [or love] does no wrong to the neighbour, so goodwill [love] is the fulfilment of the Law.” The preceding positive summary of the Law’s end may be put thus: Cherish/Love your neighbour as if your own self.

On the 14th of September it is the Feast of the Holy Cross. There will be a special Mass at 7.30pm. Parishioners are invited and encouraged to attend. The Morning Mass will as usual at 9.15am.

Entrance Antiphon

You are just, O Lord, and your judgement is right; treat your servant in accord with your merciful love.

First Reading

A reading from the prophet Ezekiel 33:7-9

If you have not warned the wicked man, then I will hold you responsible for his death.
The word of the Lord was addressed to me as follows, 'Son of man, I have appointed you as sentry to the House of Israel. When you hear a word from my mouth, warn them in my name. If I say to a wicked man: Wicked wretch, you are to die, and you do not speak to warn the wicked man to renounce his ways, then he shall die for his sin, but I will hold you responsible for his death. If, however, you do warn a wicked man to renounce his ways and repent, and he does not repent, then he shall die for his sin, but you yourself will have saved your life.'

The word of the Lord.

Thanks be to God

Responsorial Psalm

Ps 94:1-2, 6-9

R. O that today you would listen to his voice! Harden not your hearts.

Come, ring out our joy to the Lord; hail the rock who saves us. Let us come before him, giving thanks, with songs let us hail the Lord. R.

Come in; let us bow and bend low; let us kneel before the God who made us for he is our God and we the people who belong to his pasture, the flock that is led by his hand. R.

O that today you would listen to his voice! 'Harden not your hearts as at Meribah, as on that day at Massah in the desert when your fathers put me to the test; when they tried me, though they saw my work.' R.

Second Reading

A reading from the letter of St Paul to the Romans 13:8-10

Love is the fulfilment of the Law.

Avoid getting into debt, except the debt of mutual love. If you love your fellow men you have carried out your obligations. All the commandments: You shall not commit adultery, you shall not kill, you shall not steal, you shall not covet, and so on, are summed up in this single command: You must love your neighbour as yourself. Love is the one thing that cannot hurt your neighbour; that is why it is the answer to every one of the commandments.

Gospel Acclamation

2 Corinthians 5:19

Alleluia, alleluia!

God was in Christ, to reconcile the world to himself; and the Good News of reconciliation he has entrusted to us. Alleluia!

Gospel

A reading from the holy Gospel according to Matthew 18:15-20

If your brother or sister listens to you, you will have won that person back.

Jesus said to his disciples: 'If your brother does something wrong, go and have it out with him alone, between your two selves. If he listens to you, you have won back your brother. If he does not listen, take one or two others along with you: the evidence of two or three witnesses is required to sustain any charge. But if he refuses to listen to these, report it to the community; and if he refuses to listen to the community, treat him like a pagan or a tax collector.'

'I tell you solemnly, whatever you bind on earth shall be considered bound in heaven; whatever you loose on earth shall be considered loosed in heaven.'

'I tell you solemnly once again, if two of you on earth agree to ask anything at all, it will be granted to you by my Father in heaven. For where two or three meet in my name, I shall be there with them.'

The Gospel of the Lord.

Praise to you, Lord Jesus Christ

Communion Antiphon

Like the deer that yearns for running streams, so my soul is yearning for you, my God; my soul is thirsting for God, the living God.

I am there with them

Praying together

Our Lady of Perpetual Help Prayer

O Mother of Perpetual Help, grant that I may ever invoke your powerful name, the protection of the living and the salvation of the dying. Purest Mary, let your name henceforth be ever on my lips. Delay not, Blessed Lady, to rescue me whenever I call on you. In my temptations, in my needs, I will never cease to call on you, ever repeating your sacred name, Mary, Mary. What a consolation, what sweetness, what confidence fills my soul when I utter your sacred name or even only think of you! I thank the Lord for having given you so sweet, so powerful, so lovely a name. But I will not be content with merely uttering your name. Let my love for you prompt me ever to hail you Mother of Perpetual Help. Mother of Perpetual Help, pray for me and grant me the favour I confidently ask of you. (Then say three Hail Marys).
